New Look for Online Safety Training Log-In

An important change is coming to our online training. The UT System in conjunction with OIT, the Ag Institute, and the Health Science Center has purchased a new system that will house online learning content. This new system is going to replace Skillport, which is the system that currently houses the Skillsoft courses.

What does this mean for us?

It means that the look and feel of how we get to our Skillsoft courses is going to change. However, once you start the courses, the player window (start and stop buttons, menu, table of contents) and the substance of the courses will all be the same.

It also means that there will be at least two weeks in June (12th -23rd) where we will be unable to access the Skillsoft courses while the transition from one platform to another happens.

How is Facilities Training going to help?

Ashley and Laura Jo will be undergoing training on how to use the new system. After training, they will develop some job aids (printed guides and videos, we hope) to show you the steps for navigating the new layout and help you and your employees get to the courses.

Laura Jo will also go ahead and publish the list with those who have birthdays in June a little early, for those who want to get their training complete before the two-week outage.

Should we be worried about the record of our training this year?

Nope! Every Skillsoft course you have taken has been recorded in your IRIS Training History. No records will be altered due to this change.

What should we do next?

You don’t need to do anything differently! Complete your online training as you had planned...or if your birth-month is June, perhaps a little early. Watch for more announcements from your Facilities Training team!
